1 Introduction and Background

1.1 Introduction

The National Transport Authority (Authority) is a State body set up under statute in 2009. From 01 January 2011, it assumed responsibility for the regulation of the small public service vehicle (SPSV) sector, i.e. taxis, wheelchair accessible taxis, hackneys, wheelchair accessible hackneys, local area hackneys and limousines, together with their drivers, owners and associated services. At 31 December 2015, a total of 21,146 SPSVs were licenced to the Irish fleet; 17,488 were taxis and wheelchair accessible taxis with c.70% of those in the Greater Dublin Area. At 31 December 2015, there were 27,440 SPSV drivers licensed to provide small public transport services across the country.

This industry has an almost unique set of characteristics in that a driver's daily activity involves lone working, door to door services on unscheduled routes, the handling of money and valuables and, as has been increasingly reported upon in recent years, threats to personal security and violence at work.

1.2 Background

In January 2012, the Report of the Taxi Regulation Review Group was published on foot of a wide ranging review carried out in line with a Government decision of June 2011. The Review Group, which was convened and chaired by the then Minister for Public and Commuter Transport, Alan Kelly T.D., included dispatch operators, drivers, vehicle owners and consumers as well as Government Departments and regulatory and enforcement agencies. The aim of the review was to allow consumers to have confidence in the SPSV sector while also ensuring that legitimate and competent operators and drivers could be rewarded fairly by operating under a regulatory framework that is adequately enforced. This "Mandatory Driver Safety Equipment Consultation" was undertaken in line with the actions recommended within the Report.

Action 37 of the Report of the Taxi Regulation Review Group committed that:

"In recognition of driver safety issues, a consultation process will be carried out with the industry in 2012, on the possibilities and merits of introducing a requirement for the mandatory provision of certain driver safety equipment in taxis. Potential options for consultation include:

- In-vehicle security cameras;
- A partition separating the driver front seat area from the remainder of the vehicle;
- A locational alert system; or
- Other new technology based options."

Within the context of this action and this document, the term “taxi” above is taken to mean all categories of SPSV.

Separately but in parallel, Action 45 states:

“This action proposes the planned migration to the use of smart (electronic) technologies in individual SPSVs to address the current challenges in monitoring and regulating a fleet of over 20,000 vehicles; and also to better exploit the potential to integrate the SPSV fleet into the wider public transport system.

Developments in computing and communications technology, together with the increasing sophistication of in-car technology, creates opportunities to move the SPSV industry to a different level, both in terms of interfacing with customers and in regard to efficient monitoring of regulatory compliance.

Possible capabilities that could be considered include enhanced information availability for customers, improved operational data collection, remote taximeter fare update capability, remote disabling of roof sign operation, driver security monitoring features and similar functionality.

It is likely that the integration of these features into taxi technology will take place over a period of time, on an incremental basis, and it is important that regulatory proposals in this area are considered in the context of likely technological developments.”

2 Consultation on Mandatory Safety Equipment for SPSVs

2.1 Purpose and Process

The purpose of this consultation was to elicit the views of the SPSV industry, stakeholders and general public on the possibilities and merits or demerits of introducing a requirement for the mandatory provision of driver safety equipment in SPSVs and, if appropriate what that equipment could be. The current SPSV regulatory framework does not prohibit any proportionate, lawful safety measures and many drivers have implemented certain safety measures already.

A consultation on the introduction, in a mandatory fashion, of safety equipment for SPSVs and their drivers was commenced on 07 August 2015, when submissions were invited from the industry and public by way of public advertisement in the Irish Independent newspaper, the SPSV Industry Update and website publications in relation to Action 37 of the Report of the Taxi Regulation Review Group.

Submissions were accepted received by the Authority up to and including 18 September 2015.

2.2 Approach

Two particular questions were set to prompt discussion and to understand the appetite for any requirement for such safety equipment to be made mandatory:

1. Do you consider that safety equipment in SPSVs should be made mandatory?
2. If you do consider that safety equipment in SPSVs should be made mandatory, please state any suggestions or proposals that you wish to have considered.

As a guide for those submissions, it was suggested that the discussion on safety equipment design considerations should range from potential options of a simple full view interior mirror right through to real time, live locational and identification aides, together with any other potential safeguards identified. No specific equipment proposals were made in this consultation.

3 Consultation Response

3.1 Submissions received

A total of 2,649 submissions were received, including three late submissions. A total of 2,353 hand delivered submissions received were identical but signed individually. 296 other submissions were received by email and post. A list of all those who made submissions is referenced in Appendix A. A copy of the common submission is attached at Appendix B. Repeat identical submissions by the same individual were excluded.

97.3% of the submissions received did not consider that safety equipment in SPSVs should be made mandatory. 2.7% of the submissions received considered that some form of safety equipment in SPSVs should be made mandatory. In the majority of submissions, question one, “Do you consider that safety equipment in SPSVs should be made mandatory?” was answered in the negative; resultantly, question two was not considered by the respondent. A small number of submissions provided suggestions or proposals for appropriate safety equipment for SPSV drivers and these are attached in Appendix C for information.

3.2 Issues Raised in Submissions

All 2,649 submissions were reviewed by the Authority and the issues raised were categorised, summarised and analysed. In total, 72 (2.7%) of the submissions were generally in favour of implementing safety equipment in SPSVs on a mandatory basis, some providing information on the available options. However, 2,577 submissions (97.3%) were against the concept of making this protection mandatory, noting that SPSV operator discretion should continue to be exercised in this regard.

A total of 8 main issues were identified during this review process. The core categories and the number of times the issues were raised under each heading are summarised in Table 1 below.

Table 1 – Issues raised in submissions received

In terms of issues that were raised most frequently in those submissions which did not consider that safety equipment in SPSVs should be made mandatory, the highest common factor (2,408 instances) related to cost and the potential financial impact on SPSV service providers.

The second highest proportion of issues referenced (2,392 times) related to potential negative impacts that physical safety equipment might have on passenger perception of a friendly, safe SPSV service.

The third most recurrent factor (2,385 instances) was based on the fact that that a vehicle might not be used solely for SPSV purposes and is privately financed by self-employed operators, with concern expressed around the potential for monitoring/surveillance of that vehicle.

4 Analysis of Issues Raised

4.1 Cost and financial impact

Respondents in the main submitted that making safety equipment mandatory would be an untenable financial burden on drivers and operators, particularly given the current operating costs and market environment facing the SPSV industry. It was also submitted that this move could be the commencement of a policy towards full compulsory standardisation of vehicles in the Irish SPSV fleet.

A further concern related to both the capacity for future sale of and an associated devaluing of vehicles with safety equipment installed or uninstalled.

4.2 Ownership and self-employed status

Concern was expressed regarding the fact that, whilst a vehicle may be licensed as a small public service vehicle in its business capacity, it is frequently, also, a private family vehicle and is directly financed by the self-employed owner. It was submitted that the normal, safe, private use of the vehicle and the employment status and autonomy of the vehicle owner would each be eroded by making safety equipment installation mandatory.

4.3 Safety Partitions

It was repeatedly submitted that safety barriers around the driver would lead to a perception of poor customer service and risk which would ruin the reputation of the sociable Irish driver and safe, friendly tourism in Ireland. Also, the impractical nature of physical barriers, emergency escape issues and a reduction in passenger seating capacity and driver workspace ranked high in the submissions received. Only 1.4% of respondents believed that partitions should be mandatorily introduced.

4.4 Monitoring

Many submissions indicated unease with the potential for monitoring by agencies of the State (or private servants of those public agencies) of a driver or a vehicle in terms of location and activity, both public and private.

4.5 Policing and court

Numerous submissions advocated that, rather than the mandatory installation of safety equipment being used to deter violence against drivers, a perceived leniency and inconstancy of current policing and judicial approaches should be tackled with an emphasis on appropriate sentencing for such criminal activity.

4.6 CCTV

The highest number of positive responses to question one, 76, recommended that CCTV be made mandatory in the Irish SPSV fleet. There was limited suggestion with regard to potential options in this regard but those received are appended to this report.

Those submissions which negatively referenced CCTV specifically indicated concern in relation to potential data protection and privacy issues, including concerns around potential illegal uploading of images on social media.

5 Summary and Conclusions

The purpose of this public consultation process was to elicit the views of the SPSV industry, stakeholders and the wider public in relation to any necessity to make mandatory the installation or use of SPSV Driver Safety Equipment and to encourage debate within the industry.

A very high level of response was received to this consultation, with a total of 2,649 submissions provided to the Authority.

The overwhelming majority of the submissions – 97.3% - did not support the introduction of mandatory safety equipment for a variety of stated reasons. 2.7% were in favour of making safety equipment mandatory for SPSVs.

In relation specifically to privacy issues and CCTV and recording devices, we would recommend that operators engage directly with the Office of the Data Protection Commissioner for advice in this regard. General advice published by the Office of the Data Protection Commissioner last year states:

“There are a number of data protection implications regarding the installation of CCTV in taxis as the footage recorded would be considered to be personal data under the Acts. In general, this Office would have a concern about the proportionality and justification of installing CCTV cameras in taxis taking account of the legitimate privacy expectations of vehicle users. Our general guidance is that while a balance must be struck between the privacy considerations of the service users and the legitimate interests of an organisation to protect its business, the continuous recording of passengers in taxis is not compliant with the data protection legislation.

However, this Office is aware that certain taxis have introduced CCTV and it is assumed therefore that they have done so having assessed the proportionality conditions above. Where this is the case we would expect that the footage, given its extremely invasive nature, would be generally restricted from access and deleted on a rolling basis after 24 hours, except where there is a need to retain it in response to a specific instance. Other conditions in relation to prominent notices of such recording would also need to be met. This Office does not accept that it is ever proportionate to use audio recording (recording conversations) in a taxi.”

- www.dataprotection.ie/docs/CCTV/1242.htm

Following this consultation, it is not intended to make the installation of designated safety equipment in SPSVs mandatory. However, we would encourage all SPSV operators to continue to identify and actively manage those risks particularly associated with the SPSV industry, together with the general risks associated with customer service and vehicular transport businesses.

Common Submission

Submission in response to public consultation on Taxi Roofsigns and Mandatory SPSV Driver Safety Equipment 2015

Action 13 of the Report of the Taxi Regulation Review Group states; To design, for consultation with the industry, a new taxi roof sign that is more compact, is subject to restricted availability from authorised supplier, and can display a greater level of information for consumer and compliance improvements. Consideration will be given to the use of electronic displays as part of the roof sign and the future-proofing of the sign to link with future developments in the area of taxi technology.

Currently the taxi roofsign I am using is the largest of any taxi fleet. The level of information outstrips that of any fleet with Taxi licence number, area of operation and dispatch companies, as well as in car credit card facilities. On longer journeys Legislation provides for the roofsign to be turned "sideways" to allow for increased fuel savings. The cost of electronic signage, to include repairs when necessary and time lost particularly at weekends due to the unavailability of roofsign providers would be a major factor in my business. With these points in view and no benefits to the consumer of a reduced size roof sign in terms of visibility I totally reject this proposal.

Action 37 of the report of the Taxi Regulation Review Group states;
In recognition of driver safety issues, a consultation process will be carried out with the industry in 2012, of the possibilities and merits of introducing a requirement for the mandatory provision of certain driver safety equipment in taxis. Potential options include;

- . In-vehicle security cameras;
- .A partition separating the driver front seat from the remainder of the vehicle;
- .A location alert system; or
- .other new technology based options."

Firstly I would like to point out that my vehicle is a private vehicle, privately financed and funded and not expressly used as a PSV vehicle. i.e. school runs, family holidays and a range of other uses. The cost of installation maintenance and third party monitoring of my private vehicle would be of major concern. Currently I am not aware of any business provider who is subject to mandatory CCTV requirements in their business and I believe it is optional. The proposal of a partition I believe would create a bad representation of both Ireland, and give visitors the opinion that they were not in a safe environment both in the car and in our cities. It would also reduce the number of seats in my vehicle and create an unpleasant atmosphere in my work space.

In summary; the costs involved regarding roofsigns, in car CCTV systems and partitions would be a major factor in my business. Of major concern to me is that these proposals on driver safety will be made mandatory. I believe new roofsigns, in car cctv monitoring will lead to a monitoring of my hours, the area of operation, and ultimately a move towards standardised vehicles with me bearing all costs involved further eroding my rights as a self-employed person. The large number of social media sites displaying uploaded CCTV without the person's knowledge has led to a number of court cases with the provider of the CCTV being sued. It is also my view that the in car information displayed on the fare card advising passengers who decide not to pay the fare, that it is an offence is in-sufficient. The courts leniency to punish offenders whether, fare evaders or in extreme cases violent assault does not act as a deterrent and I believe the NTA, and the Department of Transport should be raising this issue with the Department of Justice to provide harsher sentencing and fines to act as a deterrent creating a safer working environment for Taxi Drivers.

With these points I strenuously reject these proposals;
