Janis Morrissey

Director of Health Promotion, Information and Training at Irish Heart Foundation

Janis Morrissey is a member of the Irish Heart Foundation's senior management team. She leads the design and roll out of innovative, national services across diverse settings including underserved communities, workplaces, schools and healthcare sites, training programmes for the public and professionals, and national information awareness campaigns.

Janis works closely with her advocacy colleagues, particularly in relation to childhood obesity and climate change. She acts as media spokesperson on heart health matters, leads the Irish Heart Foundation's annual health promotion awareness campaign, coordinates the organisation's heart health information and has presented to several Oireachtas Committees.
