E-Scooters are a sustainable modes of transport and because e-scooters have no tailpipe emissions and can replace short car trips, they are often the more eco-friendly mode of transportation.

Objective:

To have more students use E-Scooters to college as it's more sustainable mode of transport than cars and buses.

Overview:

There is no E Scooter by-rent scheme for any college in Ireland and I believe it would be a great thing to introduce to students who struggle getting to college by waiting for the bus or those who don't drive. By introducing this idea it would be less stressful for students walking long distances and more sustainable getting to college on time by using E-Scooters.

Sustainability:

Electric Scooters are generally great for the environment, as their use doesn't result in greenhouse-gas emissions. They are very energy-effecent and only use as much electricity as a bigger household appliance.
